It is my great honor to congratulate Faith and Community Empowerment (FACE) on its 25th Anniversary and to join you in celebrating a quarter century of faith, unity, service, and impact.

For 25 years, FACE has demonstrated what is possible when communities come together around a shared commitment to opportunity and empowerment. Through its work at the intersection of faith, community, and public service, FACE has helped strengthen families, develop leaders, expand access to homeownership and economic opportunity, and build lasting bridges between communities and institutions.

As the child of Korean immigrants, I am especially grateful for FACE's longstanding commitment to ensuring that Asian American communities have a meaningful voice and a seat at the table. That work has helped generations of families not only pursue greater stability and opportunity but also become more active participants and leaders in the communities they call home.

The impact of that mission is extraordinary. Over the past 25 years, FACE has touched more than 100,000 lives, connected more than 17,000 families and individuals with pathways toward homeownership, provided millions of dollars in downpayment assistance, trained thousands of faith leaders in community development, and opened doors for hundreds of young people through internships and workforce opportunities.

These numbers represent something much greater: families building a more secure future, young people discovering new possibilities, and communities becoming stronger through service, partnership, and belonging.

As FACE celebrates this remarkable milestone, I extend my deepest congratulations to its leadership, staff, partners, volunteers, and supporters. Thank you for 25 years of uplifting our communities and creating pathways to opportunity for generations of families.

Sincerely,
